Hey SUBOG members,

In an effort to connect you to what the rest of our organization is doing, we have decided to start a weekly newsletter. In this email, expect to see a snapshot of the previous week along with a look at what events are to come.

We saw some great work from a number of committees this past week. Fine and Performing Arts hosted an Open Mic on Tuesday. Comedy hosted the hilarious comedian Tracey Ashley, and a number of committees all teamed up to bring UConn a truly special Winter Weekend. “Flashback February” was a huge success, reaching all edges of the UConn community through a pair of hands-on daytime events, the distribution of (literally) a ton of ice cream, a throwback collaboration with Late Night, and a Jorgensen concert that not only left the crowd happy, but introduced them to a whole new species—the yeti. I would like to give a special shout out to all committee members from all of the committees who had events this past week. Keep up the good work!

SUBOG has never been the kind of organization to rest on its laurels, so we are back at it this week, planning and hosting events that enhance the UConn experience. If you can come down to SU 303 tonight at 6PM as Recruitment & Retention hosts the SUBOG Café. It would be great for prospective members to hear from our current committee members about their experiences in the SUBOG. Plus, there will be plenty of refreshments. It’s a classic win-win.

Applications for next year’s board are now live! If you are interested in being a committee chair or an executive board member, fill out the application on subog.uconn.edu/apply by February 26th at 11:59PM. You all have proven to be a very strong batch of committee members with lots of leadership potential. If you’re interested, don’t be afraid to reach out with any questions to subogatuconn@gmail.com.

Best Regards,
Matt Murray
President
